We have a male red merle Aussie pup. He will be nine weeks old this weekend. He had his first round of shots and were health checked by my vet at 6 weeks. He has a very common umbilical hernia due to their mother tugging on their umbilical chord. That is easily repaired at time of neuter. He's a otherwise very healthy babies. He is weaned and eating puppy food well. His mother is a AKC/CKC registered red merle and the father is a CKC registered red tri. They are both owned by our family. The puppies are very well socialized. We have another female Aussie and two Boston Terriers so the puppies are well socialized with other dogs. They have also been around children as well. The mother is very laid back and the father is quite energetic. Their puppies seem to land in the middle. These pups will only go to homes out in the country or with back yards. They are very energetic dogs that want to work. They will become destructive if locked up or not paid attention to. Text or email me if you are interested or have any questions. Rehoming fee will.
