This sweet guy's name is Taz and he is about 10 months old. He is one of the sweetest dogs I've ever seen or been around, and has nothing but love to give to the right owners. We are having to get rid of him because our landlord said he is too big and we can't keep him. He is a giant lap dog and loves to cuddle and lay around with you. He also loves to give kisses.

Now here is Taz's story. He was abandoned after the floods this past May and we took him in. He was malnourished and very skittish if you punished him so we think he was abused. However we have taken care of and fed him and he is one healthy puppy now. But he suffers from pretty serious separation anxiety, so if someone decides to take him you have to realize that you have to be extremely patient with him. I don't know if he has slept a full night since we got him because he hates not being able to see us. But as soon as I walk into the dining room he stops whining.

He is good with other dogs and small kids. Not sure about cats. We do ask that if for whatever reason down the road you decide you don't want him to contact us first to assure he stays at a good home. We are asking a $200 rehoming fee to ensure whoever takes him really wants him. He is up to date on all shots and has tested heart worm negative. He is also house trained aside from the occasional.
