I got this idea from an add I saw last week and thought I would take it up a notch from the original idea, but was really apprehensive because it IS Craigslist, but couldn't find another outlet to explore this idea...so here it goes!

I'm a single professional male in my 40s, private school educated, but only tech school afterwards, no college degree. I am attempting to do what seems to be the impossible in my everyday life. I want to put a group of GOOD people together and get OUT OF THE HOUSE after work a minimum of 3 nights per week and most weekends. It doesn't have to be expensive. It doesn't have to involve alcohol or a bar, because I'm not a drinker or drug user. If you're tired of the same old thing and believe there is more out there, then this is for you!

My story is: I am not really interested in people at my job outside the work walls, with the exception of maybe a couple people. I have a few relatives and friends that I do things with, but they are not as up to doing stuff as often as I am. For about the last 5 years, it seems everyone I know has slipped into "zombie" mode and has become lethargic, dull and "old" in their own minds. This isn't just the people in their 40s like me. This is not an "ailment" I am familiar with. I am not satisfied with social status quo, so to speak.

I like to laugh, talk about various issues, have a somewhat twisted sense of humor, like to be outside (even in Winter), cookouts on the patio (haha...even in Winter). I'm not much of a sports fan anymore other than Vandy and Titans when they play and aren't sucking. I have a fireworks hobby, doing little stuff like that once or twice a year. I like to drink, but not to get drunk. I like to make nice, but I don't like to be a jerk. I like to be a bowler, but I don't like to stink. I like to be a runner, but I don't like to exercise.
