Hello,

I am a stay-at-home mother looking to provide care in my home for 1 or 2 infants or toddlers. I currently provide childcare in my home. The group of children that I care for now is really a good group of kids and they play well together. I also lucked up by the kids having great parents as well. My schedule allows me to have a lot of flexibility and I will definitely work with someone that I feel is a good match. Hours can vary too. I know not everyone has the 9-5 job. I am very reliable, laid back, easy to talk to and I have a professional demeanor. The age group of children that I specifically have cared for is from infancy to two. I live in a nice neighborhood and I have a clean home. We do activities together as a family and with our families. Please consider me for your childcare needs. Take care and have a great day!

Parents please remember when searching for childcare that cheaper rates doesn't always equal up to quality service. Some people are watching children because they love what they do. Others are watching children because it may be the only job they can find right now and when they find something better they will leave you high and dry. I am not that kind of person. I am looking to care for children long term and I enjoy watching them grow up. Stability is really important in a child's life. I can provide excellent references. Serious replies.
