I tried to tell them I haven't turned my back on my God. My God never had a beginning and will never end. My God rises every morning in the east and is a light bringer. My God brings warmth in the spring and causes mother earth to grow and flourish, so man can destroy her. MY God is the Universe and keeps the stars in order and has for countless millennia.

Yes I get lonely, I get depressed, I get angry I had all those feeling when I was a Christian too? I miss a warm body to lie next too and fellowship to share my thoughts and values with. It got so difficult at first I planned my own demise and still think about it. When I get like that I go out and look at what my God has given me to enjoy. Then I can endure the world of a while longer.

They are just feelings, residue of the lies you/we were fed from birth. You/we have seen the errors of your/our way and no matter what you/we do, you/we can't get rid of feelings or convince people of anything they are afraid to examine. Discovery must be found on the path we ourselves walk.

So who ever reads this my advice is don't get depressed, think of it as freedom, true freedom. The system can take away our money, our lives and our property but they can NEVER take away our spirit and freedom. If we die, we die free.
