Building Photography Portfolio

I'm a freelance photographer here in the Twin Cities specializing in events (weddings mainly) and I am looking to expand my portfolio and my overall shooting experience to gain business in more areas of photography. Basically winters get to be pretty long when you don't have weddings to shoot.

I have been contacted several times by clients looking for boudoir photos and the like, but have been unable to convert these inquiries into paying gigs due to a lack of examples in my portfolio. I feel this is the biggest gap I need to close, and figured the best way to do so is to just hire a model.

I am looking for a female model, of at least 21 years of age for a boudoir/lingerie shoot. Partial or full nudity if comfortable. Women of all body types/ages/hair color etc. considered. Ability to do own hair/makeup/wardrobe a big plus. I may also need models for conceptual/art shoots in the future as well, as this is another gap in my experience.

Let me make this clear: I am serious about growing my brand as a freelance photographer, and want to be as professional as possible, and want you, the model, to be as comfortable as possible. All work will be done in a studio space on your terms, and I will accomodate your needs as best as I can. Keep in mind though that photos from this shoot will be used to promote me as a photographer, and therefore will be subject to public posting on my personal website and/or social media.

If interested please send me an email with a short descripion of your experience as a model, your rate, a link to your portfolio (or whatever is available), and your general availability.

My portfolio is available online at www.AxelSunstrom.com if you are interested in seeing my current work.
