
If I already have proof of ongoing and daily larceny why don't I just fire this SOB you ask?? At this point you are the last factor in my investigation. I want to determine how some things are happening to prevent future occurrences and there are several other questions I hope can be answered and to get the run down of who can and can't be trusted.

To win this contract you must be/possess the following traits, skills, attributes, etc.

You must be male, you must be willing and able to perform a full days labor in heat (when not in company vehicle, fast food place, gas station) so really more like a half days work. Which is one of your assignments to track with a stop watch the entire day and the actual time working versus driving versus anything else. You must be serious, honest, detail oriented for both your fake work and your real work, be fairly articulate, be punctual, be fast on your feet, be vigilant, be able to be friendly but remain emotionally detached from these people you are there to give a fair evaluation and report and cannot take any sympathy and or animus against anyone. The sympathy part should be easy cause by and large the main subject is a dickhead and especially to new employees. So be thick skinned. This is another reason he is leaving us and another area you need to evaluate. Which team leaders are fair, which are helpful, which actually take time to train you, which ones take ownership of difficult situations and which ones blame and yells and screams at other employees? Be smart and be cool..this guy is not dumb. He may not be w world beater but he is clever and cunning and devious and insightful. You can't come on too strong and you can't totally not fit in. Somewhere in between but if in doubt just be quiet and listen and watch.

Rate of pay for contract will be based on hours worked per day with a daily stipend for lunch, etc.

You will sign a confidentiality agreement not to reveal anything about true identity to anyone at my company or any one you are investigating.

Agreement will also include you agree to maintain confidentiality of any unflattering information you could learn about my company that I am unaware of presently.

You will be punctual, you will work hard, you will to the best of ability without compromising yourself gather info I will request, you will communicate to me later in the day or evening at a time that works for each of us a recap of the day and we will discuss strategy for following day. You will under no circumstances tell or intentionally expose your true purpose. You will at all times during your contract period represent yourself to be an employee of my company and you will follow all rules and policies as would any employee unless in which case we discuss doing things outside normal policy to further the true reason for your employment or if not to go along and direction of team leader, within reasonable, legal and safe boundaries would lessen your ability to be effective. If at any time you would expose yourself or intentionally compromise the information gathering component of operation you will forfeit and and all remaining compensation as that was the very purpose of your temporary employment contract. Upon completion of field assignment you will publicly (to the fellow employees) let it be known your reason for departure that we agree or will agree on...new job, etc. or maybe u just don't show back up. You will on a daily basis type up while fresh in your memory a report of that day and get that to me along with any evidence. Upon completion of last team member day you will in short order right a detailed report of your experiences, opinions, observations, etc. Please be reasonably well spoken and have decent writing skills.!

You may make up a fake name and background to use during your time as a team member. Of course I will know your identity. The main guy is not dangerous or threatening so you have no worries, quite the opposite he is a pussy..

We will discuss compensation, etc when we meet for interview.

This operation needs to commence either next week or the following week at the latest. One of those weeks is going to produce an opening which will be ideal to place a new hire on that crew.

We will discuss compensation structure at meeting and upon selection. I will reserve the right to post date a check with final agreed upon percentage of wages and or any bonuses until 7 days after receipt of final written report and exit interview to make last payment. This would only be exercised if I felt candidate might reveal identity or tip anyone in company off. In all likelihood upon completion of the presumed 2 weeks you would meet with me over that weekend to present and discuss report and then would just not return Monday and I would announce you.
