One of the most common things I hear from musicians is how unhappy they are by being unable to build the music career they desire. The majority simply don't know what actions to take to become pros in music. Worst of all, too many people are simply full of misunderstandings about how the music business really works.

Here is how to quickly tell if your thinking about a career in music is on the wrong track. If you agree that in order to get into the music business the most important things are: Â

Get your music out to more people

Play more gigs

Create connections with music business executives

Pursue a record deal at all costs

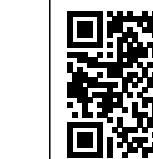

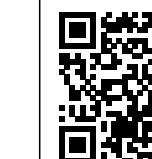

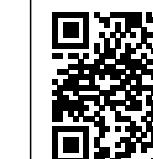

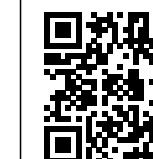

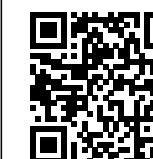

Start playing music at a young age

Choose between artistic freedom and financial security

Then you are totally off in the way you approach success in a music career.

In a few moments you will see why it's so very difficult for most musicians to have any chance of becoming a professional and you will also understand the seven keys to dominating your music industry competition, achieving your goals and becoming successful. Â
