Hello,

I need some help uploading some content to a website that helps students learn chemistry. This is basically a data entry job that will require copying and pasting material into online forms. It is pretty straight forward work, but I do want someone that won't make any mistakes while uploading. You can work on this at your own pace from home, just keep track of your hours, and then I'll pay you for your time. I estimate that it will take about 5 hours to complete. I'll likely have more work after this project is complete as well that is similar.

If you are interested let me know.
