Computer Won't Start Your laptop or PC will not turn on. This can be the result of defective hardware. Data Recovery If you've accidentally deleted or lost data, stop using the drive immediately and get your data recovered by a professional. Broken Laptop Screens Broken Laptop screens are not the death of a laptop. Getting the screen replaced is a more affordable option. Dim Screen Sometimes the back light on a screen can burn out. If the screens visual is barely visible, it may be time for a screen replacement. Windows Won't Load Your computer gets power, but when trying to load or boot to Windows, the system crashes or restarts. Blue Screen (BSOD) Your computer crashes with a Blue Screen, often called the "Blue Screen of Death," which flashes a code and then restarts the PC. Loose Power Jack The laptops power jack is loose and you have to jiggle it to get it to charge. Sometimes the power jack will no longer charge the laptop. Liquid Damage If your laptop or computer experiences liquid damage, shut it off immediately, and do not move it. Call a professional immediately. Physical Damage Physical damage can be broken hinges, cracked or damaged casing, or an impact that makes hardware
