What are you looking for in a web designer? How do you compare one designer offering services versus the other? What are you going to get in return for your hard earned money? Are they local? These are the questions you are asking yourself while looking for a new web designer. Yes, there are many on Craigslist but most are frogs and lack skills of a professional designer. Anybody can claim to be professional (on Craigslist many do) but few actually live up to the billing.

Who am I?

My name is Patrick Emmerick and I own Dayton Web Design LLC which is located in Dayton, Ohio. I have been designing websites since 2001 (professionally since 2006). Web design, digital marketing and website consultation is what I do for a living every single day. I am an expert in the field of web design, branding, and digital marketing. Translation: Superior skill set and experience at your disposal.

What do I offer over these other designers?

I offer much more than just web design, I offer experienced: Web design, digital marketing, competitive analysis all wrapped up into one. Choose me and you will have the best chance at long term success. There is a reason I own the name: Dayton Web Design and that reason is because I was one of the first to offer my web design services to the public. This means I have many years of long term web design skills. Instead of me throwing out technical terms to show you how much I know and how great of websites I can build for you, just look at my client portfolio. I have clients instead of customers because we work together to give you the site you envision.

Most successful unique websites take approximately 30 - 80 hours to build and tweak. Plus multiple meetings and a joint collaboration to make it perfect. Do you think you are going to end up with the same website if you evaluate your designer by the lowest price? If you were to pay $500 do you think this person is going to give you 30 - 80 hours to make sure your site is great? You will be lucky if this person who charges this puts 8 hours into your site. Don't end up with a useless website from a one trick pony. Increase your web design budget to a reasonable amount and you will likely get paid back with a much better return on your investment. Better websites with more time invested convert more business and pay for themselves over and over.

I have several clients in Cincy and will drive down to talk to you in person. While I am a little further north in many cases a smaller region like Dayton offers lower prices on web services. I am still local and can provide better service than someone in your back yard. Choose experience, knowledge and an all around web designer, digital marketer, and website consultant with lots of real world business experience. I wrap all of this into one bundle for a reasonable design fee that equals a great value.

Large local portfolio and great business references available upon request. All it takes is a phone call and I can give more details and a quote if interested.
