Golf is nothing more than the blending/combination of the laws of physics and rules of biomechanics (how the body and it's joints work). If you're not working with an instructor that has a clear and intimate knowledge of that, your improvement will be limited and/or fleeting.

I've received the reviews I have because I know the golf-swing, and I always pinpoint EXACTLY what needs to be fixed. I communicate those needed changes clearly using the latest CMV video to help with visualization and then work with my golf students tirelessly to make the needed change.

There IS an optimal way for everyone to swing the club.

Just take a quick look at the advances I make with ALL my students (not just "some"... ALL) in just one lesson. (See my Channel on YouTube). Come take one lesson and you'll experience golf shots you never thought were possible.

Granted, because each person's stature is different (tall, short, shorter/longer arms/legs) each person's swing may "look" slightly different, but swings that produce CONSISTENT shots that maximize POWER all have the same 4.
