The Indianola Review, based out of the Midwest, is currently reading for its debut issue, tentatively slated for December 2015. We are a print journal committed to paying writers for their short fiction and poetry. We are listed on Duotrope and are maintaining a very fast response time.

We look for strong fiction from around the country, regardless of genre. If it's good, send it along. Same goes for poetry. New and emerging writers encouraged to submit. We are currently reviewing artwork for our debut cover, as well.

See website for submission guidelines and payment rates: www.indianolareview.com

We accept all submissions through our nifty Submittable page and charge no fees for standard submissions.

We look forward to reading your work.
