I'm currently seeking experienced Marketing Directors who are now looking for a part-time opportunity.

That was me, and I'd love to share my story. Take a read and see if it resonates with you at all. I'm a professional. I'm educated. I'm a go getter. I climbed the ladder, including titles with the words 'director' and 'VP.' But all of a sudden I realized that my career started to consume my life, and I was missing out on the actual life part.

I'm now dedicated to working part time in order to live life full time. For me, I have a daughter, and I want to pick her up from school. But I'm not willing to give up working or having an income.

I've now found an opportunity where I can grow my own business and work towards replacing my salary with part-time work. (I know it sounds crazy; keep reading.) I'm a part-time marketing consultant, but I actually want to tell you about my side gig. Over the past year, I saw my dear friend (who has a master's degree by the way) match her full-time paycheck with this part-time gig. My other friend, who's on the same team, brings in a full-time income while staying home with her three kids.

I know it doesn't sound like it could be possible, so let me tell the details and the facts.

â€¢ Apple, Coke, Proactiv are billion dollar brands. According to experts, Apple owns about 14% of the global cell phone market. Coca Cola owns only 27% of the soft drink market. It is my understanding that Proactiv dominates over 80% of the global acne market! This product that serves as the best-selling, non-prescription acne care system worldwide is THE GIANT in the global market, and it is limited to just one single skin condition.

â€¢ Rodan + Fields, the creators of Proactiv, have now created clinical products concentrating on FOUR specific areas of concern. They are the #4 global premium skincare line (with Estee Lauder, Lancome, & Clinique)-yet they aren't in stores AND not even global yet. The global acne market is estimated at $3 billion. That's the number that launched the Proactiv tidal wave. The global anti-aging market alone is estimated at $261 BILLION! (<http://buff.ly/1DIHd3m>). And, it's only going to get bigger in the years to come.

Rodan + Fields is sold in 100+ countries, but they have decided that they feel it's sold best through word of mouth. So we can offer people like you and me the opportunity to work with them. I never wanted to sell something. I've always say, "I'm not the type to sell something." They're correct. I'm a woman who has friends, not business mates. I've said "no" to a lot of things and now I can say "hard no" to anything 'marketing' my friends. This isn't what I want to do.

The products are amazing. Clinical results are amazing! They sell themselves. I simply wash my face and talk about it. People want to improve their skin! It's that simple. This is a turn-key, e-commerce entrepreneurship where everything you need is at your fingertips. No inventory. No parties. No billing. No commuting. No set hours. No boss. Your business is handed through your website, making it accessible to anyone around the country & eventually around the globe soon too.

Our team is also one of the main reasons I said, "yes." In addition to the two teammates I mentioned above, one of my other leaders is an ex-physicians assistant who replaced her salary with R+. She's now working towards replacing her husband's physician salary. I had a business meeting last night and sat in between two women -
