I'm a video game hobbyist looking to meet a team of like minded people who want to take the leap of converting their passion for games into a business. I've personally been active designing small games for about half a year now and have designed two small games and am currently working on a prototype.

I'm a programmer and am currently in school to become a software engineer, but am currently looking for another programmer, graphic designer, musician, or anyone else with a strong drive or interest in creating games. I have 1 of my games I created for my band below and a prototype of a project i'm working on now.
