Instead of a Screenplay (90-130 pages double-spaced, in screenplay format), ask about the following options:

* SCRIPTMENT -- a hybrid treatment-screenplay, written in a combination of paragraph/prose format and screenplay format; 20 to 80 pages single-spaced; extensive action and setting description; some dialog; substantial camera direction and shot description. Ideal for projects in which dialog is key; which have strong visual appeal and fantasy. Stronger for projects heavy on visual appeal and which have heavy narrative exposition. Some commentaries are quite highly professional presentation and description.

PRESENTATION TREATMENT -- a treatment and literary instrument written in paragraph/poetry format; 20 to 80 pages single-spaced; extensive action and setting description, little or no dialog; some editorial style commentary; minimal camera direction and shot description. Best for projects which rely less on dialog and more on on-screen action, visual appeal and stylistic qualities. Like Scriptments, Presentation Treatments are ideal for fantasy, sci-fi or other projects heavy on visual effects. The lack of camera direction and shot description creates a more fluid narrative, and generally yields a less technical literary instrument that's more conducive to relaying a film's more intangible and distinctive qualities.

WRITE YOUR GRAPHIC NOVEL SCRIPT--FOR FILM/TV--FROM 1495*

21ST Century Foy does the work for you, fast and economically.

WHY ADAPT YOUR STORY INTO A GRAPHIC NOVEL?

Graphic Novels are IDEAL PRESENTATION TOOLS for selling certain genres to Motion Picture and Television Studios, Distributors, Production Companies, Sales Agents, and other licensees.

For many projects, Graphic Novels are SPECTACULARLY EFFECTIVE proposal elements that can often instantly command the attention of TOP TALENT AGENTS, LITERARY MANAGERS, PRODUCERS and STUDIO EXECUTIVES.

Even if you don't immediately find a production partner or other ally for your completed Graphic Novel, you can INDEPENDENTLY PUBLISH IT, quickly turning your project into an income-producing property.

IS YOUR STORY RIGHT FOR A GRAPHIC NOVEL?

What kind of stories lend themselves to Graphic Novel adaptation? If your story has three or more of the following characteristics, then it's a good prospect for adaptation into a Graphic Novel:

Fantasy Sequences

Abundant Action Scenes

Potential for a Distinctive Visual-Stylistic Treatment or Rendering

Extensive Stock of Characters

Lavish or Eye-Catching Settings

Other Provocative Visual Elements

Film (especially Feature Film) is a VISUAL MEDIUM. Consequently, many stories can be rendered in the Graphic Novel format successfully, giving you a potent and highly effective sales tool.
