2008 YAMAHA R6

I've owned this bike for about a year.

A few things I've done to it:

- It's been plasti dipped blaze orange. The original color is the 50th anniversary yellow. It looks sick!
- It has a bike alarm installed. It isn't currently turned on right now due to it being in the garage. If you keep it outside a lot, I can show you how to turn that on.
- I've put new gold shorty adjustable clutch and brake levers on. They're a dream and make it a lot more comfortable to use the bike.
- It has a license plate block off that gives it more of a clean look and a license plate relocate also. It's right under the seat basically and looks great.

Oil has just been changed and it runs great. One thing that is wrong with it but doesn't affect ridability is the air temp sensor. It's really only for showing the air temp coming in. It doesn't affect the ecu nor does it affect the performance of the engine. This bike pulls hard and the tranny is.
