SYNOPSIS

An introverted teenage girl searches for her boyfriend when he mysteriously disappears after she convinces him to take her virginity. Hurt and feeling abandoned, CJ searches for Cole, but she starts to receive confusing threatening phone calls from him as if she was the one who abandon him. What she doesn't know is that he's actually much closer than she could ever guess.

I Want You Inside Me is a horror story about a teenage girl who wants to be "like one of the boys" and pursue sexual experiences without getting into a relationship, but when she does her suppressed desire for love and connection takes over causing her body to CONSUME her lovers whole. Tonally, this film is two parts body horror (Polanski & David Cronenberg) and one part teenage drama (Clueless & My So Called Life).

CHARACTER BREAKDOWNS

JOY (17): CJ's loudmouthed best friend. Joy is the cool girl of the duo, the one that's audacious enough to sneak CJ out of the house while her Dad is awake downstairs. In terms of the classic teen drama duo in My So Called Life, Joy is Rayanne to CJ's Angela.

COLE (early-20s): A smooth talker, and a college party boy who's drifting through life at the moment without any real direction. He spends his summers working a part-time job as a salesperson, cruises in a sleek car and is tight-knit with his friends. He's got a few beer and weed habits.

SPENCER (early-20s): At first, Spencer is to be ignored as one of the boys in the brotherhood, but usually plays the sport and party roles. One day he finds out he's known for his "balls up". He's a shy and sensitive young man who is a little more into his masochistic works of getting massages and picking up chicks. Athlete.

TOMMY (early-20s): Tommy is the leader of the pack, the rouser of the party, the guy who comes up with the plan and gets his friends to execute it. He's the shameless of them all. Tall and average body.
