I hate to do this but my roommate left her chinchilla when she moved out. I have taken care of her for 6 months and feel awful because she does not get any attention as she should since I work full time and am simply not an animal person. She comes with a wheel, hay feeder, huge water bottle (lasts days), extra bedding (huge bag), extra food (1/4 full), treats (cheerios), ceramic food bowl, toys, lava ledge, plastic hiddy hut, container dust (for baths 1/2 full) and cage! You will literally need nothing for her unless you wanted to expand her cage size. She is 5 y/o, grey in color, female, and healthy (she did get a part of her tail amputated do to my roommates neglect) but her fur is growing in just fine! She runs up to me and accepts treats very gentle, talks back when talked to, loves head scratches/pets and lets me hold her (it took 3 months for that). Only looking for someone who knows how to care for chinchillas not in a rush to rehome email me for pictures, questions, and rehoming fee is negotiable.She will not be free!! I have invested a lot on this EXOTIC pet please don't make a ridiculous offer. Everything pictured is what she comes with as closely as I could find to
