We moved to a new house where we found a stray cat who was clearly pregnant. So we fed her and she decided to have her kittens in our backyard. No clue how many wks. Guess is 8wks. No shots. Don't know anything about them. Just want them to go to good homes. The mama cat has stopped nursing with them and comes around less and less often. Not 100% sure on sex of kittens either. There is 4kittens total. We are thinking 1boy which is the black and white and 2 girls striped and white and striped patches and the other one which is all black not sure. We play with them and hold them. They are still a little scared but i think that would change if they were seperated and officially away from the stray mom. They stay
