Dealers abusing Craigslist are just pigs. They Hog the listings, making the individual user experience really stink.

This is madness. Hundreds of the same old ads from music and piano stores get posted every day. And as an individual user, it really sucks.

I immediately have to change my CL browser setting to show only "owner" ads every time I log in to ignore these commercial guys ads. A few ads are fine, hundreds are the issue here.

I for one have decided not to ever shop at these dealers. They have taken a great platform for individuals to sell and trade gear, and to meet, and commercialized it to the point that people are really pissed.

I hope others will make a statement too and help take back this great service from these commercial users. Its ours if we do.
