Seeking 15 medical research participants local to the Boston/Cambridge area to complete a 2 week project for confidential medical and health research study for large national company. This project has already been completed in other parts of the country, now looking to gather data from the Boston area! This will be a paid research study.

Project will require participants to wear a small medical device for 2 full weeks, for 24 hours/day. Participants are allowed to remove the device when showering, but must keep it on at all other times (including when sleeping) for the full 2 weeks.

About the Device:

small med device that will strap on to your arm, which will allow the device to monitor the general health of the participant. The device has a small pouch that carries a chip that will track all medical/health data. The device will make a noise every 30 minutes. At the time of the notice, participant must completely stop all movement for 60-120 seconds in order to track the most accurate data.

Travel Requirements:

This person must be able to report to an office in Cambridge on a daily basis during the 2 weeks, to download data from the chip inside the medical device to a computer in the office.

Qualifications:

Must be able to fulfill 100% of the project requirements above

Please apply with short summary of self and contact information (phone and email) or resume

Other qualifications will be discussed over the phone
