I am looking for an actress to play Laurie Stevenson, the trophy wife of a troubled older husband who pulls a gun on her and does away with her in the final moments of the film.

The movie - "Breakfast With K.J." - takes place as Laurie prepares a breakfast of kale and organic banana for her husband, K.J.R., an ex-con who is not at all happy because he is an old-fashioned bacon and eggs kinda guy.

In order to please her husband, who wants a compliant 1950s-type wife, Laurie behaves like a compliant 1950s housewife most of the time; but she snaps from time to time into the role of a radical feminist who can't stand her husband, until she meets her unhappy end.

It's great theater, and it's a great, fun and challenging role.

If you would like to play Laurie, please send me your pics, resume and reel, if you got.

No problem if you don't got.

Thanks.

No experience necessary.

This 7-minute Independent film is a comedy that pokes fun at:

- 1 Men;
- 2 Women;
- 3 Marriage;
- 4) Feminism; and
- 5) The nutrition craze in America.
