Four QR codes are arranged horizontally, each linking to a different swimming pool feature: a swimming pool, a hot tub, a water slide, and a water fountain.
