We have a pair of Cockatiels. They are bonded and go thru the "mating" process, but have not yet laid. The male is a grey and very good singer. He is very social with adults. Not fond of kids, but may tolerate older teens. He is approx 4-5 yrs old. The female is a yellow pearl approximately 3yrs old.

They both used to be very social with people, but are a little timid now as they have not been handled much in the last 6 months. They are my daughter's birds, but they obviously don't like kids. They both love men and will sit and groom on my husband. I wouldn't recommend for a household with small kids. They will bite.

We are looking to rehome them to an adult or breeder. They must stay together. They are ready to breed.

Rehome fee $225 to ensure a serious long term home. Can include small transport.
