Are you a GMAT student who desires a 710 or better on the test, but feel like a 610 or mid 600 score is the best you are able to do? If this describes your circumstance, continue reading!

The GMAT exam is actually a very learnable and teachable exam. As a full time GMAT tutor, its my aim with each student to hone in on weaknesses and then strengthen them with every session. This is possible because I employ a systematic approach to teaching. Furthermore We're able to study in this manner because I have an original program and set of practice GMAT problems. Unlike many instructors, I'm not going to merely make you use the official guide and bring me the questions you do not get. Rather, we are going to figure out the chapters you are weak at and build lessons around those sections. As an example, if we see that you struggle with number properties, then we are going to do a whole class merely on that topic and by the end of the lesson, you will fully comprehend that topic. Finally, to ensure that you preserve your newly learned skills, I Will assign practice questions for you to do in between our sessions. This process builds confidence, efficiency, and performance.

I have been tutoring for that GMAT for over 9 years, and therefore consider myself a GMAT expert. This means I understand just what you must know from each section to be successful. So quit feeling sorry for yourself! Email me as soon as you can so we can get you on the path of reaching a GMAT score you never believed.
