I have a web site social network, shopping cart and news site and I am looking for a person that would be willing to help me develop the site. Some knowledge of php and html would help but I really need some one with vision and some great ideas to implement into the site. This is a very neat opportunity for someone to make some money and have some fun.

the site is coded and I am installing modules.

I have a small custom auto body shop here in Orlando and can trade out some work or we can work together on many terms.
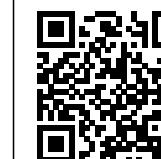

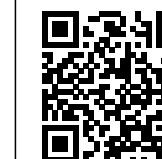

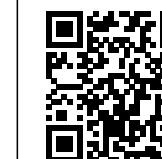

Please call Frank or email me for more
