2004 Xterra with only 92k miles

Tow Package
 Auto 4x4,
 no leaks runs great no Check engine lights
 new tires all around and new spare tire

I am the second owner of the truck. I have done every maintenance myself, oil changes done every 3k/3 month religiously.

At 87k i recently did a ton of required maintenance
 -water pump
 -gates timing belt (gates makes the oem nissan belts and i also have one on my other xterra)
 -replaced the heater hoses from the firewall to intake manifold and lower intake,(main hoses and the small hoses that are a pain to disconnect from the intake manifold)
 -replaced a bypass heater hose that tends to leak
 -thermostat
 -valve cover gaskets

-camshaft seals
 -oil pan seal
 -oil filter, ac, and a new serpentine belt
 -spark plugs (lots of them in this one)
 -Distributor as well as the cap and rotor
 I was so deep doing the timing belt and gaskets that I was considering doing the head gasket but i did a leak test before i changed the distributor and every cylinder was at 15% so the head gaskets are healthy as well as the piston rings and valves.

this truck is ready to go and runs strong
