Here is the link to that decision: http://www.nycourts.gov/reporter/3dseries/2010/2010\_07379.htm

It affirmed this decision: http://www.nycourts.gov/reporter/3dseries/2009/2009\_06653.htm

According to this article -- "Complaining about a rent overcharge in New York City" -- filing a rent overcharge complaint with DHCR is not recommended because DHCR is considered pro-landlord: <http://www.tenant.net/alerts/articles/complaining.html>

Finally, there is no statute of limitations for challenging the rent regulated status of an apartment. See e.g., East West Renovating Co v DHCR, 16 AD3d 166, 167 [App Div, 1st Dep't, 2005] ("DHCR's consideration of events beyond the four-year period is permissible if done not for the purpose of calculating an overcharge but rather to determine whether an apartment is regulated.")
