My name is Anthony Ponce De Leon, and I am a wedding photographer based in Seattle.

My work can be seen, here. www.anthonyponcedeleon.com

Growing up, I have always loved stories about people, heroes, history, traveling, music, and art. It makes sense that I eventually found a camera and started telling my own stories with it. Its a natural expression for me. Its a perfect combination of human interaction, documentation, and creation. I love telling stories about people, their friends, families, and about love. This reflects in the photos that I take at weddings, which is a balanced focus on tiny, intimate moments and big, colorful, epic hero shots.

Weddings are an amazing Ritual. Like most ceremonies in culture, many of them have similar structures, but they are never, ever the same. The grooms nervousness, the bridal parties excitement, the couples parents glowing pride in their children; these are the stories that look for.

The Art of Creative Collaboration-

Client/photographer relationships are incredibly important. Our creative visions, our communication styles, our senses of humor - everything contributes to what we will make together. I would love a chance to hear a bit about you & your partner. Please drop me a line and introduce yourselves. Tell me about you two; tell me about how you met, your wedding date, your favorite time of the year, or maybe your favorite colors.

After our introductions, we will schedule a meeting and have a formal consultation to go over all of the details of your day. This will give us time to get to know each other,
