Before you talk to them, take a minute to read this and then give us a call - you'll be far better off if you do. Those kinds of "all cash, quick closing" offers are coming from real estate investors who will usually offer 60 cents on the dollar. So if your home was worth $350,000 on the open market, you should expect an offer of about $210,000. We have a better way. Even if your home - or one that you've just inherited - needs a lot of repair work, you'll still get the best possible price by letting us put it on the market for you. We will expose your home to millions of potential buyers, including multiple investors - who we can get to bid against each other. With our lending connections, we know how to help your buyer to get financed for either a conventional loan, or if there are significant repairs needed, either a construction loan or "hard money" loan. So before you take a bad offer, give us a call at . Let's talk first. Then you'll at least make an informed!
