Not owning reliable transportation can be a serious issue for struggling American families. And while some urban areas have great public transportation systems, in most of the United States it is not really a feasible option for raising a family. If you are already having a tough time, being unable to reliably get to work, take the kids to school and accomplish basic errands can only make your family's situation worse.

This is why we have put together a list of grant programs for cars. These programs do not always provide free cars, sometimes merely making it possible to buy a car under market or at a highly reduced price. These are only a few examples of local car programs. Those interested in applying for a grant should read the eligibility requirements carefully before filling out the application. Check out our site for full details and program descriptions:
