I have two beautiful puppies but being 8 weeks they will need training, the shots, etc. The person that sold us the dogs told us they received their first shots however we wanted to be sure, we will most likely buy this from Tractor Trailer Supply and administer if no one comes forward by this evening 11/05/17.

Breed:

One of the parents was a Razor Edge Pit Brindle and the other looked to be of a Black Lab/Rot mix. The reason I say this is because the Dad had papers but the mom didn't. In that litter they had two that looked like Rottweiler's. The black puppy (Female) looks like a Pit where you can see the size over the tanned/golden one (Male) is most likely from a mixture of the breeds. Its paws are double the size of the pits. Both should be get over 35 pounds.

Reason:

They were an impulse buy in a WalMart parking lot. I haven't had a puppies in YEARS and my wife and I knew they were work however it set in after that first morning the work that goes into potty training an indoor dog. They whine only under the circumstance you play and leave them, but will stop when you say no. Anyway, our situation with family back then was very different. I hate that we bought them because I believe every animal should have a great home with plenty of love, so I felt like we short changed these pups because we could provide this. The truth of the matter is that between our toddler, baby, and work schedules, we just don't have time to raise these beautiful dogs because it is about 5-7 years too soon. We voiced that concern to the seller and they provided us their number in the case we changed our mind, however, they will not return their call even though we said they could keep the money. We have dealt with smaller animals and toy breeds but it is a different story when trying to deal with dogs like these as indoor pets. These will be GREAT outdoor dogs and would provide tons of security.

No rehoming fee, just free.....just arrange a place for us to.
