They are such sweet pets and have great little personalities. However, my mom is highly allergic to them, which has prevented us from having them for a long time. She is so allergic that she can't come into our house for even a few minutes if we keep them indoors. When we moved over the summer to a house that has a seperate outdoor workshop, the kids started asking for guinea pigs right away, as we now had a separate, climate controlled room to keep them in where my mom wouldn't be affected by then. So we saw these little guys, fell in love with them, and brought them home. They have a set up in my workshop now. Sadly, this was a better idea in theory than in reality. We all make sure to go out there multiple times a day to love on them, but it's really just not the same as having them in our house. Guinea pigs are very social animals and I am afraid they just aren't getting the attention that they deserve. So I really think the best thing to do is to try to find them a home where they can be a part of someone's family and not just kept seperate and visited several times a day.

I want anyone considering taking them to be aware of the work that is involved with them so they don't end up in the same boat as I am. They need a weekly cage cleaning with possible spot cleaning throughout the week. They need to be in an area of your home where there is lots of activity, such as a family or living room. They need a fresh supply of Timothy hay and pellet food at all times and fruits or veggie scraps daily (we always give ours apple cores, carrot peels, broccoli scraps, etc.) Guinea pigs live 5 to 7 years, so please make sure you are willing to commit to that length of time.

If you think you can give them a loving home, please reach out to me. They will come with their cage, the food and Timothy hay I have on hand, food dishes, water bottles, etc. Please text if.
