Types of windows we can replace or install

Fixed -- This type of window cannot be opened. It is usually inexpensive and suitable for higher windows that won't be opened anyway.

Double hung -- One of the most common windows and a great window for a period home. The window consists of two sashes that move up and down. Only half of the window can be open at one time.

Casement -- Another common window, casement windows are hinged vertically to swing in and out like a door and operated with a crank.

Awning -- Awning windows are similar to casement windows but are hinged horizontally.

Sliding -- Sliding windows move on top and bottom tracks. They are very common and can be inexpensive.

Paladian -- A paladian window consists of group of three windows with an arch over the center. These windows have become very popular in the last decade. They provide visual interest and drama to a home.

Picture -- Picture windows are especially popular in ranch-style homes. They are large fixed windows flanked by 2 casements or double-hung windows.

Clerestory -- Clerestory windows were especially popular in Craftsman homes. They consist of a strip of small horizontal panes set high on a wall.

Elliptical or Arched -- Elliptical or arched windows often placed above double hung or fixed windows in today's new homes
