QR Code Link to This Post Please help! This sweet girl walked up to me and my mom, begging for attention and love at a local flea market. After she followed us around the area we noticed she was nothing but skin and bones, and with the cold weather coming, I couldn't leave this young cat out to die. We checked for a microchip at the vet and listed her on lost and found sites. It's been almost a month now. However, you can tell this kitty was well loved and has an amazing personality. We agreed to foster her until we could find her a forever home.

Her health seems to be excellent despite being so thin when she found us. Since then, she has been wormed, had flea medication, and has an appointment to receive vaccinations and be spayed next week. Over the last few weeks she has put weight on, and looks healthy and soft now.

I can't begin to describe how affectionate this sweetheart is. There isn't a mean bone in her little body. She has never met a stranger and wants only to sit in your lap and be stroked. This small girl would make the perfect companion for someone who lives alone or for a busy family. She is a great conversationalist, will play if you want to dangle a string, and has very good manners. She will come to you to sit beside you for hours. She is small with short hair and probably won't get very big (her feet are very petite). Even as I went to take these photos of her, she put her feet on my shoulder and went up to sit around my neck and purr. She loves to cuddle, purr, kneed, love, kiss, and sleep beside people. She is always calm. My kids adore her and sit and read with her for hours at a time. She has a lot of love to give, loves children, and is not afraid of my other cats. Since we have many pets and can't take another, we need help finding this gem a forever home. With her loving personality, she would be the love of someone's life!

Please text me if you want to meet her and see if she is the right fit for you. Four 7 nine- 4 two six- 49seven3
