I recently acquired a heeler mix from someone whose health would not allow them to keep him. He's an awesome dog - crate and house trained, very good off leash, loves to swim, adores people. The issue is that my German Shepherd would very much like him to die. The heeler is crated too often in another room to avoid conflict and he really, really wants to be with me. He gets along well with female dogs but might be better as an only dog. Grew up with grandchildren but I can't attest to how he is with kids, I do not have any.

He will come with his new collar and leash as well as his crate. Good intentions and the right home only. Asking .
