You are invited to participate in an anonymous research study about your experiences using health and nutrition tracking apps. This research will be conducted over the internet using an online survey tool. You will be asked some basic demographic information and to respond to several questions about your use of health and nutrition tracking websites and how you feel about yourself and certain aspects of your life. Most people can complete this survey in approximately 15 minutes.

If you have questions about the research after you are done, you should contact David Lambert, .Â Â Â Â

Please click on this link, or cut and paste it into your browser, to access survey:
