QR Code Link to This Post I have a single mom friend with twin 12 yr old girls. She is working 2 jobs to support her and the girls. I've offered to help her out at home in such while she works. I noticed that with her being so busy with work and paying her rent and bills that she hasn't any money left for gifts for her girls. They didn't want to put their tree up because the girls knew money was tight. I said just because money was tight didn't mean that Santa wouldn't come.

Now I know it's been a tough year all around for everyone but I'm asking for a little help here. Even if only a few people can help out with 1 or 2 things then at least the twins have something to open on Christmas. I'll be collecting and wrapping everything this weekend and next week. I'm hoping to have what was collected dropped off to her no later than next Saturday the 23rd.

Both girls wear sizes juniors size small/ medium in tops and size medium or 5/6 bottoms. They hate to match so if going the clothing route best to get a variety. Twin A is into: Lego Friends, 3D monument puzzles, Dork Diary books and anything to do with fashion designing. Twin B is into: Ever After High dolls, Project MC2 science kits, Lunar Chronicles books, and intricate coloring books.

Mom likes to read. I'm trying to see if the local library has anything they could donate but I don't know who she likes to read so maybe a gift card d to Barnes & Noble?? Just some ideas.

Please consider helping me help give these girls and their mom a decent Christmas and show the girls that Santa hasn't forgotten.
