QR Code Link to This Post One of the biggest differences between a standard locksmith and an auto locksmith is the understanding of the automobile. The ignition switch is not technically a lock, but it does dictate whether or not your lock is performing properly. Because the ignition switch is so important to the ignition lock, our team of professional auto locksmiths learn to troubleshoot these issues and find out the exact problem that your lock is having. Replacing the ignition switch is no hassle for an auto locksmith because it is a very similar process to changing the ignition cylinder.
