What are we looking for:
People who like coming home to small gatherings in common spaces and sharing stimulating conversations with interesting people. People who actively practice direct, connected, and compassionate communication. People who care about creating a welcoming space for all races, ages, genders and sexual orientations and beyond. People who are curious, self-reflective, and love learning through experience. People who are actively working to improve the world we live in through your daily interactions, work or projects, and dreams for the future.

If this all sounds interesting to you, please reach out and introduce yourself. We're happy to give you a tour. We look forward to meeting you!
