I have taught both privately and in the classroom (at schools and through workshops). I have been a working musician and performer for more than 25 years. I have a degree in Music from Columbia College Chicago and a Cum Laude. My students have included even those with absolute beginners to working professionals like myself. Many of my past intermediate and beginning students have gone on to careers in music.

My approach in private instruction involves tailoring the lessons to the specific needs of each student while making sure that he/she has the knowledge and technique to succeed in their creative endeavors. Whether it's a hobby or a potential career, I leave nothing out.

I teach from my private home studio in Rogers Park, Chicago.

I can do house calls. There may be an additional fee for these, depending on location and time of day.

I can schedule lessons six days a week, daytimes and evenings.

I can teach duos or small groups and offer a discount for these lessons. This can be (and has been) very effective for bands looking to up their game a bit, or who are planning on working in the studio.

I can give (and have given) just a single session for that brush up lesson in anticipation of a big gig or audition.

Typically lessons are for one hour, once a week.

You can pay for individual lessons at $50 per hour session.

You can pay for a full month in advance for $45 per hour session.

Bigger discounts are offered for larger blocks of lessons.
