Who I am:

I'm a extroverted young (32) easy going therapist who wants to develop a Youtube channel which gives quick psychology advice ("3 tips for anxiety"; "5 ways to overcome depression"); deep dive psychology discussion ("What is drug addiction?"; "How does a genogram work?"); and question-answer life advice taken from the audience.

I've got the content, credibility and personality to host this - what I lack is a partner who can assist in filming and editing the video so its show ready.

What I've got:

- Nice offices to work from located on Sahara and Rainbow in Las Vegas
- Credibility as a doctor and licensed psychotherapist
- Charisma and teaching/speaking skills
- All the content and information needed

Who You are:

An introvert (not required, but we'd pair well) film/audio/editing upstart looking to build a portfolio. You're on point, motivated, coming up with great visual ways to communicate our message and passionate about how we might be able to help people through the power of medical psychology. You are a slight perfectionist who struggles to hit "publish" but a good team member who knows the importance of consistent content creation.

What You've got:

Video/audio equipment for filming
 Video editing software and skills to provide video
 Time to film, edit, upload and post
 A serious entrepreneur attitude

Our Partnership

Money - We are both beginning this project as a passion work meaning we won't make any money. If when we get enough subscribers and if when we get advertising dollars you are entitled to 50% of all revenue on any videos you edit/produce.

Ownership - The Youtube channel itself will be hosted on my google account and belong to me. Its my face, my information and my message on the internet, for my own professional reputation. I need the ability to take it down if I said something that is later proven false and be in control of my message. You will list yourself in the credits of the video as the producer/editor or whatever title best suits your portfolio.

- Time - I'm willing to commit 10 hours a week to content writing and performing. I'd like the same commitment from you. Our goal will be to produce one video a week. We will create our first 3 videos and once we feel comfortable with our format we will begin publishing weekly, staying 3 video/weeks ahead thanks to our first work head start.
