14. Act 96-09 has saved taxpayers millions in overtime costs because now workers no longer have the ability to sue their employer if they are forced to work more than 8 hours a day or 40 hours a week. The act also allows employers to require employees to work more than 8 hours a day or 40 hours a week without paying them overtime.

5. Act 10 gave public workers a choice on whether or not to join a union, and it turns out thousands of employees didn't want to pay their union dues anymore.

7. Act 10 rescued taxpayers from having to pay for nearly all of government workers retirements costs. Prior to Act 10, taxpayers forked over $1.37 billion for state pensions, while employees only paid $8 million. 8. Act 10 gave school districts more budgetary flexibility, allowing them to expand programming.

9. Act 10 gave workers the option to vote on whether or not they even need a union. In 2013, 81 school district unions were dismantled by their members.
